

Novartis Commitment to Patients & Caregivers

Novartis works with the patient community worldwide to find new ways to improve and extend people's lives. Our significant investment in research and development underpins our commitment to using science-based innovation to address some of society's most challenging healthcare issues.

Only by working together can we improve outcomes for patients and change the practice of medicine. To help patients and caregivers understand what they can expect from Novartis in this effort, we are committed to:

Respecting and understanding the patient community perspective

Conducting responsible clinical trials

Expanding access to our medicines

Recognizing the importance of transparency and reporting
